The Academic Commons

An academic commons, also sometimes referred to as a learning commons, is a “common” area in a college where all students, faculty, and staff share space, study, collaborate, meet, socialize, play games, access services, and more.

The Texarkana College Academic Commons is home to:

Palmer Memorial Library

Computer Labs and Classrooms

Tutoring Center

Perot Leadership Museum

Testing Center

Self-Serve Coffee Bar

TRIO

TRIO Programs
(Talent Search and Student Support Services)

Office of Disability Services

Texas A&M Texarkana
Transfer Center

The building is sectioned into different areas for different purposes, allowing spaces for noisier activities while still providing space for quiet study. The Academic Commons has the services, resources, and space that students need to complete their classroom assignments, projects, group-work and more. Once classes have started, students who have questions or need help with anything should visit the Academic Commons and ask the front desk staff where they need to go for assistance.
